Hall Nearing Completion

Youths' Center May Be Ready Early In July, Anderson

The Junior Community Hall, under construction on the city property on Benham street, may be ready for dedication early in July, it was announced Saturday by L. J. Anderson, head of the community committee in charge of the project.

Anderson reported additional funds will be needed to complete the building.

Bricks for the fireplace and chimney, which has been contributed to the project by Sierra Nevada Post No. 2680, V. F. W., are on the ground and it is planned that the chimney will be erected within the next two weeks.

Doors and windows are in place, five locker rooms have been partitioned off, as well as the kitchen. Dr. Anderson reports the rough plumbing is going in this week and that with the completion of this work, the finishing will be put on the flooring.

Anderson reports that approximately $200 additional is needed to complete the structure.

Tax Strike In State Seen

Supervisors Score Merriam Veto Of Relief Measure

SACRAMENTO (UP)—Prediction of a tax strike in various section of California if it becomes necessary to increase the levy on property to provide additional funds for relief purposes was voiced freely at a meeting of the state supervisors association here.

After criticizing Governor Frank F. Merriam's action in vetoing the so-called "supervisors relief bill" passed by the last legislature, the delegates devoted most of the session to discussion of the dire consequences they felt would follow the present "loose definition" of county and state responsibility in the care of indigents. C. E. Grier, San Bernardino, president of the association, declared conditions in 1938 would be "more chaotic than they were in 1931."

A resolution reprimanding the governor for killing the relief proposal of the supervisors and seeking to place full responsibility on the state relief administration for care of "unemployed employables" was defeated after opponents pointed out the chief executive under the present setup holds the purse strings and it was up to him to formulate a definite policy in providing for indigents. The resolution, however, was ordered submitted to the 58 county boards of supervisors for consideration.

EARHART LANDS IN SUDAN ON WORLD HOP

EL FASHER, Sudan (UP)—Amelia Earhart Putnam arrived here at 3:30 p. m., GMT (10:30 a. m. EDT) today from Fort Lamy, French West Africa, on the eighth leg of her world circling flight.

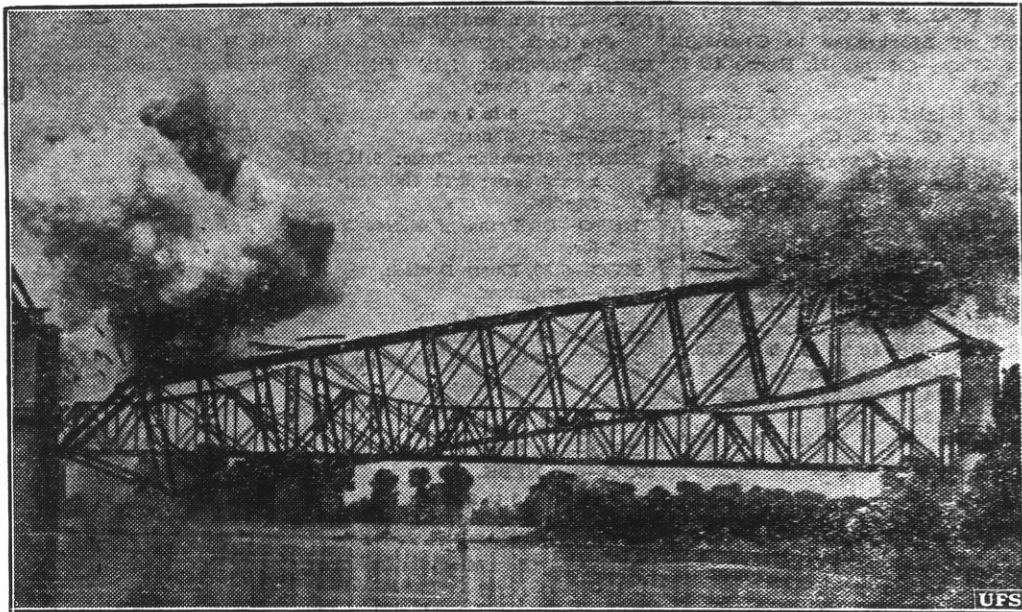

She made the 600-mile flight into the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan in four and one half hours in her twin motored Lockheed-Electra.

Historic Cattle Trail Fenced

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UP)—The historic old Magdalena trail, one of the most traveled stock driveways in the United States, finally has yielded to the barbed wire fence in the fall of another landmark of the Old West, before the encroachment of civilization.

In the spring large herds of sheep going down the Rio Grande for the lambing season, pass over the trail and return later to the summer ranges.

The historic driveways became overgrazed before the control program for ranges was inaugurated, and stockmen were forced to carry feed to supply their herds enroute to shipping points. No water was available except that owned by private individuals along the driveway.

DAD-BLASTED BRIDGE—This is one way to get rid of a bridge you don't happen to need. This was the Wabash railroad bridge, spanning the Missouri River at St. Charles, Mo. After years of service it was condemned and in almost no time at all it was removed by dynamite, as shown. Here it rises, at both ends. The new bridge replacing it is seen in background.

WINJE ORDERED TO PRISON

One To 15 Years At San Quentin Facing Confessed Burglar

Aksel Winje, 22, was sentenced Saturday morning in Superior Court to serve the "term prescribed by law" at San Quentin prison, following his plea of guilty to a charge of burglary which the court had determined to be burglary in the second degree.

The term in prison is indeterminate, from one to fifteen years.

Sheriff George M. Smith said, after court had closed, that Winje will probably be taken to prison Monday, or in any event as soon as the papers in the case are completed.

Winje, under previous conviction for a similar offense, for which he was granted probation, was arrested for burglarizing the place of James Balderston, at Coloma, on last Christmas night.

Subsequently he pleaded guilty and the court had set Saturday morning as the time for passing sentence.

Rescue Farm Center Met On Friday

The regular meeting of the Rescue Farm Center was held Friday evening. The new motion picture projection machine was displayed and there was discussion concerning the coming overnight camp, at Lake Tahoe, and the range development program.

Claybourne Trumbley reported on the Mothers' Day picnic, which was a financial as well as a social success.

Mouse Misses In Commencement

TORONTO, Ont. (UP)—Mrs. H. J. Cody, wife of the president of the University of Toronto, was acclaimed today as the savior of the university commencement exercises.

As the exercises were to begin a white mouse dashed down the aisle between rows of co-eds and women guests but it never got past the sharp eye of Mrs. Cody.

As the mouse scampered past her front row seat the president's wife scooped it up, flipped it into her purse, and as the hall echoed to cheers of students who had seen the action, she motioned to an usher to carry the bag outside.

GIRL, 12, SEEKS TO RUN AWAY TO AID FAMILY

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—Juvenile authorities today studied the case of a 12-year-old girl who attempted to extort $25 from a boy friend, her own age.

They said the girl, whose name was not revealed, wrote three threatening letters to the boy telling him "if you don't have $25 by Saturday you will be shot."

"Father works only six days a month on WPA and we haven't half enough to eat," the girl was quoted as saying. "I was going to use the money to run away and get a job so there would be more for the others to eat."

The girl has 10 brothers and sisters.

WARSHIP FAST IN BAY MUD

14 Tugs Fail In Try To Free Battleship Tennessee

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The U. S. battleship Tennessee was aground on a mud flat in San Francisco Bay today. Fourteen boats were tugging to dislodge her. There was no immediate danger and the 1,400 sailors on board appeared to be enjoying the diversion.

The Tennessee was standing upright in 25 feet of water but her bottom was caught firmly in the mud, a mile and a half south of the Alameda pier.

Failing to free their ship by its own power, the Tennessee's officers called for aid. The Red Stack line sent all its eight tugs, the Navy sent two tugs, the coast guard three cutters and the army sent the tug Slocum.

During the night's first high tide, all 14 crafts pulled in vain. When the tide ran out, the work was delayed.

The Tennessee caught on the treacherous flats while making a turn.

If tugs fail to pull the battleship free today on a late afternoon flood tide, it was expected that derrick barges will be hitched to the vessel in an effort to lift the keel from the mud bank.

District Attorney Henry S. Lyon was a Saturday business visitor at San Francisco.

Forest Supervisor Edwin F. Smith returned Friday afternoon from several days in the Caldor section.

Michigan Militia Will Guard Union Meeting

C. I. O. Adherents Meet Sunday In 3-State Conference Near Monroe; Organizers Attempt To Extend Steel Strike

DETROIT (UP)—Governor Frank Murphy announced today that a battalion of Michigan National Guardsmen and a detail of state police would be sent to Monroe Sunday "to safeguard the peace" and a "guarantee the right of free speech and free assembly" to a union mass meeting near the city limits.

Murphy himself, will attend the meeting, to be held three miles north of the city limits, but will not speak.

Twin Lakes Fish Found Dead

Sportsmen report they have learned that within the past ten days, a "considerable number" of fish have been seen floating on the surface of Twin Lakes, dead.

It is understood this condition arises as a result of low water in the reservoir, during which the water becomes poisoned, or at least contaminated with fatal results to fish, by mineral springs in the reservoir basin.

According to a report by one who went to the scene to investigate, there were dead fish on the water but it was thought that the total number killed would not exceed 100 or 150 fish.

Bribery Trial June 29th

Defense Will Argue Indictment Lacks Basis In Fact

SACRAMENTO (UP)—Defense of Assemblyman Gene Flint, Los Angeles, accused of offering a bribe to a fellow legislator, will be based on the claim the indictment has no basis in fact, Clifford Russell, his attorney, said today.

Flint was arraigned in Superior Court yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty. His trial was set for June 29. He is at liberty on $5,000 bail.

Deputy District Attorney Francis O'Shea told the court the prosecution could present its case in one day.

"If that's all the time the state needs, then that's all the time it will take to try the case," said Russell. "It's unfortunate we were unable to attack this indictment on the sufficiency of findings. There isn't enough evidence to indict a yellow dog and it's a shame they were able to blast the reputation of a man of Mr. Flint's position on such a flimsy case."

6-YEAR CHASE ENDS CAREER OF WOLF

ABITA, La. (UP)—Sheep in St. Tammany Parish graze peacefully these days and shepherds doze in the shade of big oak trees without fear of the marauding wolf that fed on their flocks for six years.

The howl of the big timber wolf from pine forests about the grazing meadows roused sheep owners of the parish to frequent organized hunts. At first the flock raider was believed to be a wild German shepherd dog. Then one day the big wolf was seen near here by William Green of Abita Springs. Sheep carcasses were found with the tongues and hearts eaten out—positive evidence of a wolf, sheep men said.

Flock raiders, who estimated their losses to the one raider at 1,250 sheep in six years, finally called a meeting and decided to import Jack Forbes, professional wolf hunter, and his pack of wolf hounds from Sandy Hook, Miss.

Forbes' big hounds picked up the trail early one morning and hours later ran the wolf from its lair. Another hour and the 77-pound wolf stood at bay. Two of the dogs were badly lacerated by the wolf's slashing fangs before Forbes caught up with them and shot the wolf.

H. B. Murphy of the Placerville Fruit Growers' Association, was a visitor Friday at San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Graehme Thorne were in town Friday from Caldor, where Mr. Thorne is superintendent of the CCC camp.

Race Of Giants In Mexico

Archaeologists Seek Permission For Further Work

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP)—Two archaeologists left yesterday for Washington, D. C., with relics of a pre-historic race of giants they found in Sonora, Mexico. In caves, 90 miles from a wagon road, the explorers said they found 34 skeletons and mummies of people who were from six feet, seven inches to eight feet tall. These people lived an estimated 10,000 years ago in the legendary "Lost Cities of Sonora."

Payton C. Hayes and G. C. Barnes of Santa Barbara, claimed the discoveries. They went into the territory for reptile specimens for the Washington zoo and were enroute to Washington to ask the co-operation of Francisco Mejera, Mexican ambassador to the United States, in further explorations.

Hayes said the location was about 450 miles east of Hermosillo, capital of Sonora, and that he and Barnes had seen 18 caves containing archaeological material which they did not explore. They had part of a burial robe, believed to have been used during human sacrifices, and the weave of the cloth they found, made by three thread looms, indicated that high culture existed among the ancient race.

They said General Juventino Espinosa Sanchez of Hermosillo had ordered an airplane landing field constructed 10 miles from the scene of the discovery, and that they planned a flight there next fall.

'LEST WE FORGET'

TWENTY YEARS AGO
Part 8—"Welcome Home"

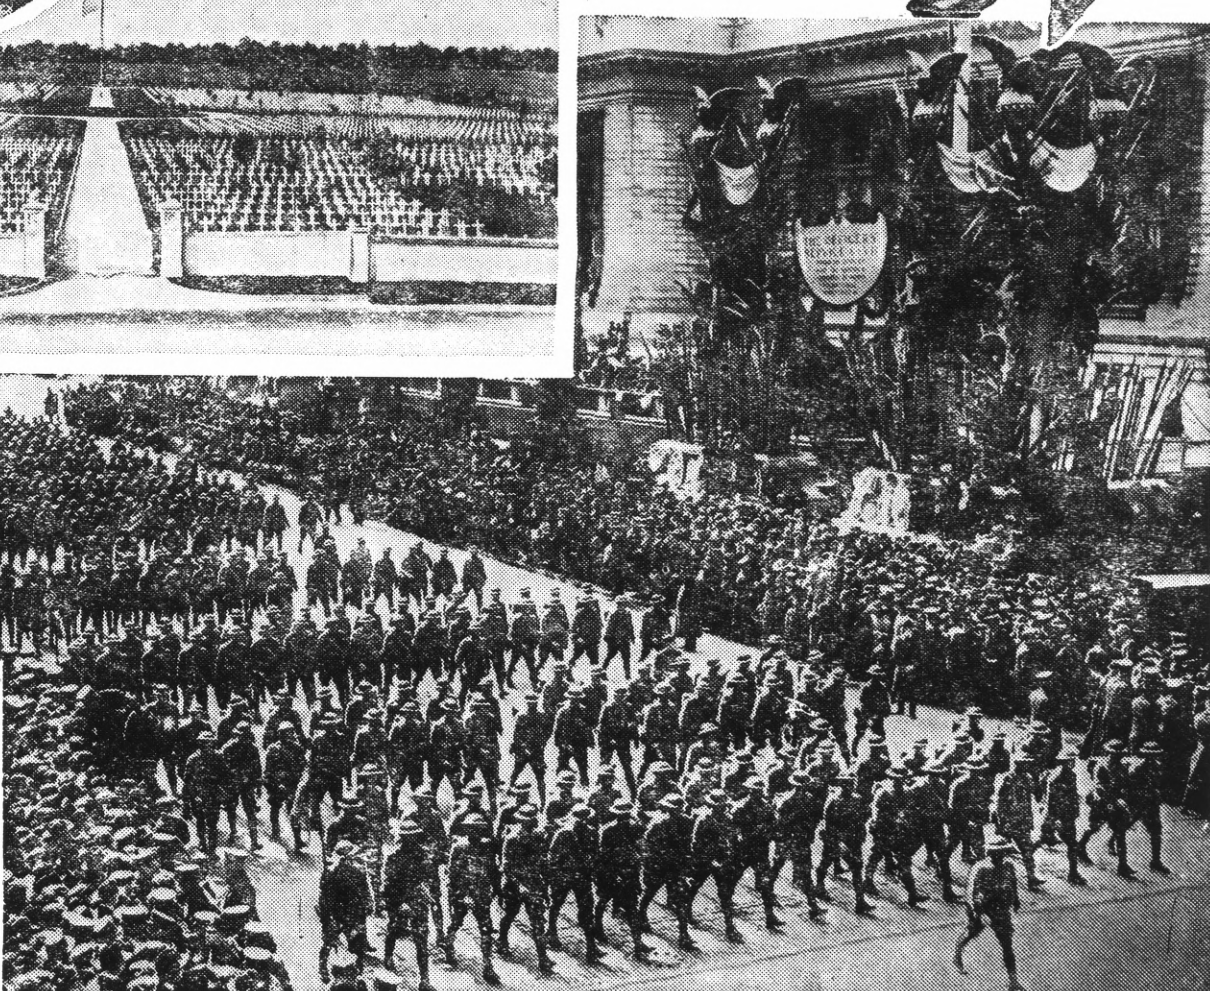

FASTER than they went over, millions of American doughboys were brought back from abroad after the war closed. Ships were filled to capacity with happy veterans eager to arrive home. The navy was justly proud of its part in transporting or conveying such a vast cargo of men and materials. Circle—Until the final peace treaty was signed, part of German territory along the Rhine was guarded by troops of the Allies.

Below—This jolly veteran exemplifies the souvenir-collecting habits of some of the Americans. Hundreds of them brought back everything but Kaiser Wilhelm himself and attics and cellars throughout the nation still hold war relics that vex housewives at spring cleaning time. Observe the officer's helmet.

At right—Victory Parade. Fanfare, the tramp of marching feet, jubilant cheers and a happy reunion for the victorious doughboys. Carrying their marching equipment, veterans are shown in a victory parade on Fifth Avenue, New York. Thousands of veterans went back at once to their old jobs. Others had to undergo a readjustment.

HYSTERIA HITS
200 WOMEN
WORKERS

PARIS (UP)—Medical and psychological specialists puzzled today over a mysterious hysterical manifestation by 200 young women at a sugar refinery at Lille. For the time being they would venture only to call it an incomprehensible collective psychopathological attack.

Four hundred women were working in one big room at the factory yesterday. One fell to the floor, apparently unconscious. Others hurried to aid her. But, according to the stories told today, as they reached the prostrate woman, the others began to shriek, whirl about as if dizzy, and fall to the ground. Some fainted, it was said.

More women started for the scene, it was said, and these went into convulsions, apparently affected by the sight of the first victims. Some of the women attacked others, it was asserted, and there was tearing of clothes, ear pulling and raking of faces with finger nails.

92 New Plays On Broadway

13 Rated As Hits,
8 Counted Moderate
Successes

By JACK GAVER
United Press Drama Editor
NEW YORK (UP)—Any impartial survey of the theatrical season of 1936-37 would have to split honors about evenly between the quick and the dead—the former being Maxwell Anderson and George Abbott and the latter being William Shakespeare, who got no nearer to Broadway than Bankside but no doubt would approve of the Bright Boulevard and its byways because of the numerous refreshment taverns and the manner in which its denizens have emptied their pockets to sample his dramatic wares.

Anderson and Shakespeare were the most-produced dramatists and Abbott so added to his laurels as a director and producer of bright farces that he is the current "Miracle Man" of the theater. Anderson was represented by three new plays—"High Tor," "The Masque of Kings," and "The Wingless Victory"—all of which had moderate or better success at the box office. "High Tor" won him the "best play" award of the Critics' Circle for the second successive year.

It has been a long time since Shakespeare enjoyed such a New York season, largely due to the actors concerned. Manurice Evans received the Della

SCOTT—Here is a new picture of Death Valley Scotty, famed desert character who built a $2,000,000 estate in Grapevine Canyon, Death Valley, Cal., whence he emerges occasionally for visits to Los Angeles. He recently created a furore by asserting he was "broke," and then offering $10,000 bills to bartenders for drinks. His real name is Walter E. Scott.

Austrian medal for his performance in the title role of "King Richard II" and his brilliant acting was largely responsible for making this one of the most successful financial efforts of the season. It will resume next fall. John Gielgud, who is somewhat on the flamboyant side, previously had set the town by the ears with his portrayal of "Hamlet" and Leslie Howard brought

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Perry came up Friday evening from Chowchilla to spend the week-end.

Miss Lucille Kibblish is spending the week-end at Oakland.

In his own version of the Gloomy Dane at about the same time, with the result that controversy over the merits of the two productions helped business no end. "Othello" was presented with Walter Huston in the title role, and, while it was not a happy or long-lived production, it made the Shakespearian season more impressive.

Starting out with an exceptionally successful hold-over, "Boy Meets Girl," this Abbott fellow further demonstrated the deftness of his hand in presentation of comedy and farce by clicking off "Brother Rat" and "Room Service," both written by neophytes. It is true that he came a quick cropper with "Sweet River," a worked-over version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," but no one is inclined to hold that against him.

On second thought, I may be doing an injustice to Guthrie McClintic by failing to split the honors four ways. He merely directed and produced "The Wingless Victory" and a revival of "Candide" for his wife, Katharine Cornell, and "High Tor" and the Gielgud "Hamlet." Artistically and financially this performance rates highly.

To get down to the bare statistics, the season saw half a dozen fewer productions of new plays and musical shows than the previous one, but as far as quality and monetary returns were concerned it rated a bit above 1935-36. Ninety-two new plays, musical comedies and revues of a commercial, non-repertory nature were presented from June 1, 1936, to May 31, 1937. Variety rated 13 as hits and eight as modern successes. The rest were failures. The number does not include such revivals of "The Country Wife," "Candide," "Hedda Gabler" and the Shakespeare plays, all of which were in the money from a modest to opulent degree, or the highly successful Gilbert and Sullivan repertory season of the D'Oyly Carte players from London. In addition to all these, the Federal Theater project presented 27 assorted items.

Salads, Veal, Seafoods Cool Summer Dishes

Sometimes it is because they are so cool, or colorful, or crisp and light in texture—sometimes there just doesn't seem to be any logical reason at all. Salads are summer favorites, of course, but so is veal no matter how you prepare it and seafood in plain and fancy dress. This week's menus include several new dishes.

Ton Of Water Worth $1.22

Formula For Taking Gold From Sea Is Not Known

By HILLIER KRIEGBAUM
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Few folk who look out over the ocean as the waves pile on the shore would think of the sea as "nature's greatest storehouse of raw materials." But that is what it has been called and figures on the potential wealth in sea water bear out the name.

The Ethyl-Dow bromine plant at Kure Beach, near Wilmington, N. C., for instance, reports that a ton of sea water has a potential value of $1.22 at current values in chemicals which might be reclaimed from it. Of course, it is now more expensive to reclaim some of these than to mine or manufacture them from other sources.

Bromine is the principal chemical obtained at the Kure Beach plant at present but others have a greater value if they were ever extracted from the sea water, chemists estimated. These chemicals more valuable than the bromine for which the reclamation plant was built include common salt, Epsom salts or magnesium sulphate, and chemical used in some types of flares.

During the past three years that the Kure Beach plant has been in operation, it has been estimated that the water treated in its machinery would cover a mile square to the depth of 229 feet. In this vast pool of water which had a tonnage of 7,539,680, chemists estimated was a potential wealth of more than a quarter of a billion dollars.

Besides the more plentiful substances are gold, silver, copper, aluminum, iron, iodine and potassium chloride. The gold in this mass of water would have been worth $29,200. Unfortunately for the plant's stockholders, no cheap process has yet been devised for recovering the gold in sea water so this fortune flowed back in the wastes. So did the 4.06 tons of silver, 377 tons of copper, 359 tons of aluminum, 377 tons of iron, 8.35 tons of iodine and 157,750 tons of potassium chloride.
